

Poetry.

Inevitably

BY FATHER A. J. MYAN.

What has been will be,
The law of life,
The law of day and night,
The law of joy and sorrow,
The law of love and hate,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,
For what we will we do,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death,
The law of life and death.

For what we are we may,

He Succeeded.

I have a little son eight years old. He is smart and bright, and for mischief-making, I think, not to be better.

I was sitting in a room one day reading a paper, when he came and stood beside me, with his finger on my nose, saying, "You are not looking at the paper right. You are looking at the nose."

"You didn't, Willie?" I asked, looking at him. "You didn't, Willie?" I asked, looking at him. "You didn't, Willie?" I asked, looking at him. "You didn't, Willie?" I asked, looking

Testing Counterfeit Coins.

"Here's the way we test coins in the treasury," said the expert, who pointed the dollar piece horizontally on the tip of his forefinger, holding the thumb a quarter of an inch away from it and gave it a brisk tap with another coin. A clear silvery ring sounded out. "Good, but here's a fake," and he repeated the operation with another coin that gave out a dull, heavy clink that ceased almost as soon as it began. "Type metal and lead; melted too. That is a wretched counterfeit." "How do you tell that it was melted?" He held the two coins so that the light struck on their edges.

"Just compare the reading, will you, or milling, as most people call it? In this genuine coin this is very clear and sharp dull. That is because it is melted instead of being stamped in cold metal like the government coins." "Why do the counterfeiters not use the same cold process?" "It costs too much and makes too much noise. With a mill, you see, a counterfeit can carry on his work in a garret and if a policeman comes in he can shoo the whole outfit out of the window. But it takes great power to run a die. Still some high flying counterfeiters do use them, and their work is usually harder to detect, though it is never so perfect as that of the government mint."

"What is the surest test for counterfeit coins for popular use?" "The looks of the reading, as I was telling you—

STILL UNEXPLORED.

THE LARGEST VOLCANO IN ALASKA DEFIES APPROACH.

Many Attempts Have Been Made to Reach the Giant, but it Lies So Far North That the Absence of Vegetation Has Rendered It Inaccessible.

The grandest mountain of North America has not yet been visited by explorers.

It is an active volcano called Wrangell, located in the interior of Alaska, and its frost wreathed dome forms presumably the apex of the continent.

Mount Wrangell lies about 500 miles north of the celebrated Mount St. Elias and is in the center of a region encircled in mystery. Gigantic mountain ranges rise like terraces one upon the other, guarding in their midst this snowy monster of the north.

About forty years ago a party of Russian explorers on the Copper river, of Alaska, first sighted the peak away to the northwest, and being duly impressed with its majesty conferred upon it the title of their honored governor, Baron Wrangell. They made no attempt, however, to reach the mountain, it being in the country of hostile natives and presenting such apparently insurmountable obstacles to approach.

Several other companies of Russians made partial ascents of the Copper river about the same time and met with disaster. One party of seventeen, under Heberichoff, was massacred by the natives. No new knowledge of the Copper river was obtained, and no approach was made to the volcano.

It was not until 1881 that another attempt was made at exploration in the Copper river region. Then Lieutenant Allen, one of the most daring men who ever entered Alaska, forced his way with several white companions up the Copper river to its source and crested half way around the Mount Wrangell district, viewing the mighty peak from a distance of forty or fifty miles, but finding no opportunity to reach and ascend it. Indeed he was on the verge of starvation at the time and it would have been suicide to have attempted to scale the snow-capped heights.

The terrible experiences of Allen discouraged further explorations by way of the Copper, and when, in 1880, Lieutenant Allen for the second time, attempted to reach Mount Wrangell by a new avenue of approach, viz., from the northeast. This route necessitated an overland march of 300 miles from the Yukon river, and when provisions became exhausted my party was still fully forty miles from the volcano and tangled up in a labyrinth of mountain ranges. Gigantic peaks, snow-capped, devoid of vegetation and animal life, barred our progress in front, and an attempt to scale them, with nothing to eat and night in sight, would have been sheer madness. So a circle was traced to the northwest, crossing Allen's trail, and we forced a way to the Yukon, 700 miles distant, barely escaping starvation.

In 1881 Lieutenant Schuchman, famous as an explorer of the Yukon, tried his hand at traversing the southern border of the Mount Wrangell domain. He proceeded overland from Fort Selkirk, on the upper Yukon, piercing an unknown district and emerging on the Copper river south of Mount Wrangell. He also had a close call from starvation.

These few explorations constitute the sum total of the discoveries in the vicinity of Mount Wrangell up to date. Several sketches of the volcano have been made as it appears from a distance, but no accurate information concerning it has yet been obtained.

It appears to be fully as high as Mount St. Elias, and may be even higher. The natives living in the vicinity are superstitiously afraid of venturing near the volcano, and this fact adds to the interest which surrounds it. I believe that Mount Wrangell can be reached by explorers who will establish depots of supplies, projecting one post beyond another and arranging for the systematic forwarding of the provisions to the terminal. No food can be depended upon in this region after leaving the river except that brought in by the explorer. The scaling of Mount Wrangell heights would require many days, but could probably be accomplished.

There is apparently little chance that Mount Wrangell will ever be reached from the direction of Mount St. Elias, that is, from the south. It is proper to state that the region between Mount St. Elias and Mount Wrangell is the only glacier field in Alaska. A few isolated glaciers can be found elsewhere along the coast, but in four-fifths of the interior no snow or ice exists during the summer. A dense wilderness of coniferous surrounds the ice region and blankets the country for hundreds of miles eastward. The volcano of Mount Wrangell offers today a unique field for the explorer and the professional mountain climber.—Cincinnati Post.

Driving Out the Rabbit.

When the rabbit, which seems to be a great mischief maker in the folklore of most races, is identified by the original Cherokee physician as the cause of a disease, the "rabbit hawk" is summoned to drive the wicked animal out of the patient. Sometimes after the hunter has been thus expelled, a small portion still remains in the words of the formula, and accordingly the whirlwind is summoned from the tree tops to carry the remnant to the plants, and there scatter it so that it shall never reappear.—Washington Star.

LEFT FOR DEAD.

A Brave Though Reckless Hunter's Remarkable Escape from a Bear.

Some years ago, writes Henry Howe, the historian of the western pioneers, a party of trappers were on their way to the mountains, led, we believe, by old Babbette, a well known captain of such expeditions. Among them was John Glass, who had been all his life among the mountains, and had seen numberless exciting adventures and hairbreadth escapes. On the present expedition he and a companion were one day passing through a cherry thicket in the Black Hills when Glass detected a large grizzly feeding on pignuts. He at once gave the alarm and both men crept cautiously to the skirt of the thicket. They took careful aim and fired their guns at the same moment. Both balls took effect, but not fatally. The bear, growling with pain and fury, charged upon his foes.

"Run for it, Bill," shouted Glass, "or we'll be made meat of sure as shooting!" Both men bolted through the thicket, but the heavy brush obstructed their progress, while the weight and strength of the grizzly bore him on, and he was soon close upon the men. They managed to get through the thicket, however, and were hurrying across a little opening toward a bluff when Glass tripped and fell. Before he could rise the bear was upon him!

Glass did not lose his presence of mind, but discharged his pistol in the bear's face. The next moment the bear, blood streaming from his nose and mouth, struck the pistol from his claws, and, fixing his claws deep into the poor man's flesh, rolled with him to the ground. The hunter struggled manfully and drew his knife and plunged it several times into the body of the furious animal, which was tearing his face and body, baring the bone in many places. Glass, weak from the loss of blood, at length dropped his knife and fell over in a faint.

Bill, who had watched the conflict up to this moment too badly dazed and terror-stricken to do anything, now thought Glass was dead, and ran to the camp with the awful tale. The captain sent a man back to the spot with Bill. They found the bear dead and stiff, lying on the body of the unfortunate hunter, whom they likewise called dead. His body was torn and lacerated in a shocking manner, and the bear, besides the three bullets in his body, bore the marks of twenty knife stabs, showing how desperately Glass had fought.

The two men collected their into camp, and removed his hunting shirt and moccasins, and left him beside the carcass of the grizzly. They reported at the camp that they had buried him.

In a few days the hunters moved on, and upon the fate of poor Glass was in a measure forgotten. Months elapsed, the hunt was over and the trappers were returning with their pelts to the trading post. On their last evening out, just as they were making ready to camp, a horseman was discerned coming toward them, and when he drew near the hunters saw a hunk, cadaverous form, with a face so scarred and disfigured that scarcely a feature was normal.

"Bill, my boy," called the stranger, as he rode up, "you thought I was gone under that time, did you? Hand over my horse and gun. I ain't dead yet by a long shot!"

What was the astonishment of the party to hear the well known voice of John Glass, whom they had supposed dead and buried. The two men who had left him for dead, and thus made their reports, were horrified.

Glass, it appeared, after the lapse of a few days, recovered consciousness. He lived upon the carcass of the bear for several days, until he had regained sufficient strength to crawl, when, tearing off as much of the meat as he could carry, he crept down the river toward the fort. He had suffered much, but had reached the fort, eighty miles distant, alive, and concluded his story by declaring, "I'm as slick as a peeled onion."

Short Lived Craze.

This is a great country for crazes. They sweep over the country like cyclones. Whence they come and whither they go man knoweth not. A few years ago the entire country was in the throes of the pedestrian craze. In every city, town and village athletes were wearily tramping around and around a sawdust circle, while thousands of spectators applauded the dreary exhibition. Nobody walks now that can rule.

Next we had the roller skating craze, which affected both men and women. It, too, has gone glimmering, leaving a trail of broken bones in its wake. The bicycle craze is now upon us, and bids fair to become a chronic disease. The men have had the ricketty craze and recovered from it in time to laugh at the recuperative craze of their big sisters. America soon loves her fads to death.—Exchange.

Intelligent Anti.

Several species of ants in South America make raids on the black ants, rob them of their larvae and couplet the poor black ants to be their slaves. In the burying of their dead, ants show wonderful intelligence, having cemeteries, and even bury their slaves in a different place from their masters and are quite up in funeral pageantry. Much may be learned from anti life in their wonderful government, sanitary arrangement, common brotherhood, nursing and care of the young, temperance and love of fresh air.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

She Married a Lord.

"What has become of your niece?" asked Miss Dunbar of Mrs. O'Reaffery. "Oh, sure, an she's done well herself. She married a lord."

"Why, you don't tell me! An English lord?"

"No, I don't think he's an English lord. He's a landlord. He keeps a summer hotel, Texas Sittings."

Accommodating.

He was evidently a very obliging boy, for when he applied to the merchant for a position and was asked his age he replied:

MILLS CLOSE DOWN

Between Six and Seven Thousand Workers Idle.

They Refused to Submit to a General Lockdown—Intense Excitement Prevails in Providence and Vicinity.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 10.—Throughout the state the excitement attending the general strike of mill operatives, started in this city and in Olneyville yesterday in high, and as new schedules of salary were posted in about every cotton and woolen mill yesterday it is more than probable that within 24 hours the weavers' strike will become general. Between 6,000 and 7,000 hands are thrown out of work, making the largest and most serious strike that has ever occurred in the state. The operatives are in no condition to stand a long strike, and grave results are feared. This district contains the big woolen manufacturing concerns of the Providence worsted mills, the Saxon mill, the Weybosset and the Riverside mills, which employ upward of 6,000 hands. But a few days ago, at a meeting of the woolen mill owners of the state, it was voted to reduce the schedule of prices paid to mill operatives. The schedule was arranged last week, and it was voted that it would be put into effect Oct. 10. The claim of the manufacturers was that the price since the woolen mills of the state, since the general strike that occurred at the Riverside mill some time ago, were receiving more pay than that given to woolen mill operatives in other sections of New England. It was made known that the operatives were to be cut from 10 to 20 per cent, the heaviest reduction being made in the weavers' pay, and but few of the mill employees escaped the cut. When the mills were started yesterday morning it began to be rumored about that the new scale of prices was to go into effect. Half an hour later the wildest rioting prevailed. At the Saxon mill, where the first police was sent, it was promptly decided not to accept the cut, and the weavers left their looms, which necessitated the shutting down of the mills. At 9 o'clock all the factories were deserted and the doors closed. Between 6,000 and 7,000 people were thus thrown out of work. The streets in the strike district present an unusual scene, mill operatives being found on all corners, hotly discussing and loudly condemning the course taken by the manufacturers, and the police are kept busy maintaining order. Extra guards have been sent to all the mills. There has as yet been no trouble of any note, although at any moment the police fear an outbreak. Fully 10,000 persons assembled on the Merino flats yesterday afternoon, that being the place selected for the holding of the mass meeting of the strikers, and when it was announced that the weavers of the Geneva worsted mills had quit their looms three rousing cheers went up. Three weeks ago, after a shutdown, these mills were started up at a reduction in wages of from 10 to 25 per cent. Five days a week were run on this schedule. Yesterday a second cut was made of 25 per cent. The weavers and other operatives who went out from the Geneva mills were warmly welcomed at the mass meeting. It was also made known at the meeting that the Nicholson file works, where more than 500 are employed, a notice had been posted Saturday to the effect that the workshops would shut down, and that when they started again there would be a reduction of salaries. The pay of the jobbers at the file works is now $2 a day, and the men say they will not stand a cut. The mass meeting was another enthusiastic one throughout. It lasted three hours, and the laboring champions were loudly applauded while any reference to the mill owners met with showers of hisses.

The Lady Was Not the Ghost.

An Irish family once had a ghost so troublesome that they sent for detectives. One of these men late at night fell asleep in his chair. The lady of the house chanced to come into the room and could not resist the temptation to groan and rattle her keys. She had never played ghost before; it was a momentary indiscretion. But the policeman did not, and could hardly be expected to believe this. He said it was hardly worth while to bring him from Dublin, and he withdrew in indignation.
Yet the lady was not really the ghost.
He was sulking in retirement. Hence doubt has been cast on the ghosts of haunted houses, even among reflecting minds.—London Illustrated News.

Belshazzar Every Day on Jupiter.
Eclipses are everyday affairs on Jupiter. Three of its satellites are eclipsed at every revolution of that mighty globe, so that a spectator there might witness during the Jovian year 4,500 eclipses of moons and about the same number of eclipses of the sun by moons.

traveling.
Little Pet—Yeth, thir; I went in a weal wathwood train of cars.
"A real train of cars, was it?"
"Yeth, thir. It went wathout astwing."
—Good News.

Of 1,000 school children more than 800 were found to be more or less near-sighted. Scarcely any of these were

I now feel like a new woman, and am perfectly healthy."

Mrs. E. Fox,
Woodstown, N. J., writes:—
"I had been sick 10 years with womb trouble and leucorrhoea. I could do no work.
Doctors could not help me.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. Now I can do all my work, and stand nearly all day, and not feel tired. I can-

Sunday School Lesson—October 15

JUSTIFICATION BY FAITH.

Rom. 3:1-11.

Lesson Introduction.

"Thus far St. Paul has established (1) the need of justification; and (2) the equal terms for Jews and Gentiles; and (3) that faith in Christ's blood is the one appointed condition. And (4) in Abraham's case he has illustrated the nature and action of faith. Now he is about to deal with the effects of faith in life and character." Glorifying is excluded, since God is one and justifies all classes in the same way. The objection that this effect is answered in chapter 4; the Old Testament witnesses to the same truth, Abraham being justified by faith. To justify is to make righteous. Through the righteousness of Christ God makes us and declares us to be righteous in righteousness. Accordingly, "two things are impossible: first, to make any sinner who refuses to believe in Jesus a righteous person; second, to make believers righteous without some display of the divine righteousness as appears in the suffering of the Son of God."

Explanatory Notes.
1. Being therefore justified by faith hath we peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ; through whom also we have had our access by faith into this grace wherein we stand; and let us rejoice in the hope of the glory of God.

Therefore, referring to the preceding proofs of the doctrine and introducing the inference from them. We have peace with God: This is the common version, and it makes better sense than the R. V. "let us have peace with God," but the manuscript authority favors the R. V. "peace" is denotation of the soul which follows upon the reconciliation with God that comes through faith, and which abides permanently with the soul. This peace, like the forgiveness and justification which lie at the foundation of it, is realized for the soul by means of Christ and what he has done. "Hath we access, etc." The introduction into the condition of justification, or the right of entrance into the kingdom of God. We are not only justified, but we are also to have our introduction into this state of favor, which includes, of course, liberty of access to God. "We stand: Which we now possess or enjoy; or, in which state of grace we stand acquitted or justified. And let us rejoice: Or better, as in common version, "and we rejoice." The joy of God: The glory of God in heaven, in which believers will share; the glory of which God is the author.

And not only so: but let us also rejoice in our tribulations: knowing that tribulation worketh patience; and patience, probation; and probation, hope.

And not only so: What is still more wonderful, the salvation of Jesus Christ figures even our trials and sufferings into life and hope. Character. Let us also rejoice: Or better, we rejoice.
Knowing: Since we know. Our tribulation worketh endurance if we remain firm under it: and our endurance works approval of our faith and trust. Work-eth is equivalent to worketh out; or brings about as a result. "Patience increaseth steadfast endurance. The Aboriginal Revisers recommend "steadfastness." "What the apostle would declare here is that tribulation experienced by the Christian believer works out for him, as its natural result, steadfast endurance in the Christian life, under and notwithstanding all trials." Probation: Testing or proving. It may mean "to approve on trial." "The trying, or testing of your faith, as James has it, worketh steadfast endurance. Steadfast endurance, as Paul has it, worketh out the result of tested and approved character."

6. And hope putteth not to shame; because the love of God hath been shed abroad in our hearts through the Holy Ghost which was given unto us.

And hope putteth not to shame: Well founded hope will not disappoint in its object, but a hope which when the time comes will prove itself to be a hope which has no disappointment attendant upon it, is made evident to us by the fact that God's love is so great toward us." Hath been shed abroad: Hath been poured out in abundant measure.

7. For while we were yet weak, in due season Christ died for the ungodly. But surely for a righteous man, with no thought for his own good, he would even dare to die. But God commended his own love to us in that he sent his own Son, Jesus Christ, to die for us.

"These verses set forth the greatness of the love of God toward us even before we began to love him and believe in his Son." Worketh: A moral sense, usable to save ourselves. In due season: the right and proper time. Did not only. O benefit of "The dying of Christ was the manifestation of God's love." Righteous man... the good man: If not equivalent to the former means the one who fulfils the demands of right and justice; the latter, one who is benevolent and a benefactor to his fellow-men. The death of Christ was the strongest proof of the greatest love.

8. Much more, being now justified by his blood, shall we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. For if, while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of his Son, we shall be saved by his life; and not only so, but we shall be glorified with him. We have received the reconciliation.

Much more: If the greater benefit has been bestowed, the less will not be withheld. Justified by his blood: The offering of his life as a sacrifice. "The ninth verse sets forth the assurance which we may have that God's love, which has been so great and wonderful while we were yet sinners, will by no means disappoint our hope now that we have given ourselves to him and been justified by him. Verses 10 and 11 confirm this still further. By his life: The living Christ will carry on to its completion that which had its beginning in his offering of himself to death. "The entire passage from the beginning of the second clause of verse 5 to the end of verse 11 is subordinate to the thought of the first clause of verse 5.
The passage from the middle of verse 5 to the end of the first clause of verse 5 is subordinate to the first clause of verse 5."

9. In the last story of many lives made miserable by the curse of the serpent, the blood of Christ is especially named as the remedy for the curse. The blood of Christ is the remedy for the curse. The blood of Christ
